THE UMAREX NOTOS

By Tom Gaylord

The “dark side” of airgunning has certainly changed over the last two decades. In 2005 the only precharged pneumatics (PCP) available came from either the United Kingdom or Sweden and were frightfully expensive or they came from Asia and were either overpowered or unreliable or both.

The Benjamin Discovery

changed all that in 2007 when it broke the price barrier, dropping good PCPs below $300. The Discovery also gave the world a rifle that was small, lightweight, easy to fill with a hand pump and accurate. But the Discovery stood alone in the field for a decade. Then in 2018 the Price Point PCP (PPP) revolution dropped the cost of fully-featured PCPs to less than $300. It seemed as if every company was getting on the bandwagon and offering features that were exclusive just a year before.

The future of airgunning seemed to shift from springers over to the PCP world as a result of the PPP. And in 2022 Umarex gave us the .22-caliber Notos—a fully featured PCP that was lightweight, accurate and started at a retail price of just $260. That rifle is the subject of this article.

Description

The Notos is a repeating .22-caliber PCP carbine that can also be shot as a pistol. The owner chooses which way to use it. In the carbine version it comes with-out sights, but an optional set of open sights is available if you decide to go that way. The 66 CC reservoir fills to 250 bar that gives enough air for 25-30 powerful shots. It is regulated so the velocity remains consistent over the entire power curve, which is what advanced PCPs offer. And that's not all!

Host of Features

Besides the regulator and removable buttstock the Notos offers a fully adjustable trigger, a Picatinny rail for optics, a seven-shot rotary magazine, a side lever for cocking and one of the quietest factory suppressors on the market. In fact, every time I shoot my Notos I am surprised just how quiet a 20 foot-pound PCP can be! This is a backyard-friendly air rifle in all respects. Pyramid AIR rates it as a three on their five-point loudness scale. I give mine a 1.5!

The rifle comes to you with a 7-shot rotary magazine, a single-shot adaptor and fill probe that ends in a male Foster fitting to make filling from many air sources convenient.

Accurate!

Besides the ultra-quiet operation, the Notos is also quite accurate. In fact, accuracy is the feature that most buyers like the best.

At 10 meters my Notos put five H&N Baracuda 15 domed pellets into a 0.165-inch group!

Aftermarket Features

The Notos is a wonderful air rifle in its own right, but the world of aftermarket accessory developers has adopted it as their poster child and as a result there is practically nothing you can't get for one. I have already added several aftermarket rotary magazines to my rifle to increase the available shots. I've also purchased a fantastic single-shot loader that is ideal when you want to make shots with precision.

Buck Rail is prolific to say the least, but they are not the only aftermarket manufacturer interested in the Notos. Maple Custom Products in Canada make several magazines for the carbine and Custom Air

At the 2024 Pyramid AIR Cup Terry Harmon of Buck Rail showed off many of his aftermarket Noto accessories.

Rifle Magazines (CARM) in Croatia make many more—including a 13-shot rotary mag that is shown below.

CARM makes this 13-shot rotary magazine for the Notos.

What is it?

Well, it's an affordable PCP for starters. It's small, so if you are a hunter, this might be a rifle to consider. It is a repeater, which makes real the possibility of hunting, and the small size makes it possible to hunt in the deep woods.

The Notos is regulated regulated so you get plenty of shots, and with the Foster fill probe you can fill in the field with a pigmy air tank.

It's very quiet so you can hunt and even shoot at pests without disturbing the neighborhood. And the host of aftermarket developers make accessories that allow the rifle to become even quieter!

In short, the Umarex Notos is the culmination of PCP technology in the current time. And the low, low price makes it affordable in a way no other PCP can be.

WHAT'S BIG IN 2025?

By Tom Gaylord

When I went to the 2025 SHOT Show in January, I heard there were not that many new airguns and airgun-related products to see. And that pretty much held true for most manufacturers.

But in the Air Venturi

booth I saw a host of new items, some of which I expected and others I had no idea were coming. And the biggest deal this year, in my opinion, has got to be the new OmniStorm.

The OmniStorm

is a breakbarrel spring rifle that has a gas piston, but it's a gas piston with a difference. This one is user-adjustable! Now, user-adjustability isn't new for gas pistons in airguns. There have been other gas piston air rifles that were user adjustable in the past.

Theoben of the UK made gas piston air rifles several years ago and the Beeman company branded one as their Crow Magnum. I owned one and wrote about it extensively in the 1990s in my Airgun Letter newsletter. That rifle cost just over $1,200. I also bought a special hand pump for around $150 that allowed me to pressurize the gas piston. I could let air out of the piston to detune the rifle or I could add air to soup it up. The range of power was limited to a narrow band at the higher end. My .25 caliber rifle could be adjusted from a low of 27.5 foot pounds up to just over 33 foot pounds.

In sharp contrast to the $1,350 I spent on that Crow Magnum in the 1990s, Air Venturi will sell you an OmniStorm this year for just $200! And this one comes with the pump you need to make adjustments. But that ain't all, my friends. The OmniStorm adjusts from a low of 500 f.p.s. to a high of 1,000 f.p.s. That's an incredible range!

What the OmniStorm provides is a basis for discovering all about gas pistons without having to mortgage your house.

The literature that was given out for the OmniStorm rifle at the SHOT Show had a scale of possible velocities and the game that might be taken.

Once again, Air Venturi did it right. The OmniStorm comes in both .177 and .22. In .177 the velocity ranges from a low of 500 to a high of 1,000 f.p.s. In .22 the range runs from 500 to 850 f.p.s. Will there ever be a .25? That's a good question and I have to think the answer depends on how well the current offering is received. If it's a huge success, then I think Air Venturi will have to consider it. And, if the customer response is less than explosive, well they needn't press ahead with a new caliber.

When can you expect to see the OmniStorm? I was told they would start shipping in May of this year. That's pretty fast for a brand-new product but I don't have that much insight into Air Venturi. If it was any other manufacturer, I'd say don't hold your breath.

So, what do I like for 2025? Well, the Air Venturi OmniStorm is it. I can't wait to get my hands on one for testing.

SO MANY RELEASES - THUMB, HINGE, WRIST - WHY?

Scan
Me!

TO READ
FULL ARTICLE

Why are there so many different kinds of releases? Individual shooting preference, of course. But the question you should be asking is, "Which type of release is good for me?" Let's look at a few to narrow it down.

T.R.U. BALL TACTICAL MAX PRO PLUS THUMB RELEASE

The thumb release has some ergonomic advantages: it creates a natural draw cycle, provides a more consistent anchor point, and enables a smoother release with better control.

T.R.U. BALL SWEET SPOT PRO FLEX BACK TENSION BRASS RELEASE

The hinge release activates through tension rather than a trigger, is excellent for consistent form, and combats target panic.

T.R.U. BALL STINGER XT VELCRO STRAP

The wrist release stays attached until you remove it, so it's less likely to get lost in the woods, has adjustable trigger tension, and allows for faster shots.

BUT HOW DO YOU CHOOSE?

The best way is through hands-on testing. Try them out and see which you like best. That's not really practical with online shopping, though. But, you can simulate using a release with paracord and a D-loop just long enough to accommodate your perfect draw length.

When testing release types, keep in mind group consistency, comfort points, and your shooting style. Do you like using a trigger? Is it more natural to use your thumb or forefinger? Do you need that anchor point for accuracy? Do you prefer a fast release or more deliberation? And the final question, Would you change your release if you got better performance?

With releases (like pillows), it's all about you. Your style, your preferences.
